

The Eternal Journey: How Near-Death Experiences Illuminate Our Earthly Lives, 1997, 294 pages, Craig R. Lundahl, 0446520543, 9780446520546, Warner Books, 1997

The Eternal Journey is the first book to offer a comprehensive look at existing documentation on near-death incidents. Here you will read candid accounts of the other side by those who have stood at its threshold, such as the man who saw World War III in a remarkable premonition of mystifying apparitions and specific facts...the young boy who, before his death by leukemia, had repeated visions of crossing a rainbow bridge and entering a crystal palace, surrounded by a starburst of light...the elderly lady who suffered a near-fatal heart attack and, during a near-death experience, met her deceased mother who forbade her to stay. "We are getting ready for Auntie Ethel", her mother explained. When the elderly lady recovered, she was told that in the interim Auntie Ethel had passed away. Filled with astounding, remarkably consistent testimonials, this landmark volume probes the connection between the spiritual and material worlds: from pre-earth life, when we forge ties with others and make plans to meet again as family, as friends, as lovers...to earth life with its unwittingly significant tasks, trials, and tests...to post-earth life and its four main purposes.
